

FEW LIKE PROJECT

THE State Government appears determined to push on with the Point Peron project despite widespread public opposition and an unfavourable initial assessment by the EPA.

There are at least three more stages to go before work could start but in the meantime I urge residents to ask candidates for council their views.

Only two out of several hundred residents I have discussed this project with approve of it.

The remainder question whether the project is needed by most Rockingham boaties and they find the plan lacks common sense.

And yes, I do support Port Rockingham marina – it's in the water where marinas belong.

To spend more than $3 million on such a project when budgets are under stress and mental health spending is likely to be cut is unfortunate.
