

Tick for progress

Plans for two proposed marinas in Rockingham have been pushed forward recently. The Cape Peron Marina precinct is backed by Premier Colin Barnett and the Port Rockingham development is all but approved. What does the community think?

“It would be good. Look at what Mandurah and Fremantle have done. It will be good for the people with boats. For some time, Rockingham has stood still.”

Sybil Tatton, Orelia

“There would be some environmental issues with wildlife, but it would be good for some people.”

Irene Roberts, Rockingham

“I’m for it. I’m an ex-sailor... I do think it’s about time Rockingham grew up. I don’t think it would make a huge amount of difference to the environment because the causeway to Garden Island is already there.”

Jill Drury, Safety Bay

“I think so but if there were environmental issues I would like to see it moved.”

Rebecca Cattermole, Waikiki

“I’m a bit undecided; I’d like to see the full proposal before I make a decision. I am concerned with the environment. If it’s family-oriented with restaurants and boardwalk, I’d be all for it.”

Jason Baker, Rockingham

“I think it would be really good, building us up to Mandurah. I would prefer it moved. Point Peron is really good as it is.”

Francis McCool, Shoalwater

“I’m not sure whether they are building it for boat moorings; I think it’s just for money and land, and building houses. I’m really against it; it’s pretty natural over there. If it’s just houses they are going to build, we’re against it, but I can understand them wanting to keep up with Mandurah.”

Steve and Shirley Swan, Safety Bay

Sybil Tatton and Irene Roberts

Steve and Shirley Swan

Jill Drury

Rebecca Cattermole

Francis McCool

Jason Baker